Tornado Benefit Show in Saenger at 2:30 Monday

James Cagney in "Frisco Kid" to Be Screened at Matinee Only

RED CROSS FUNDS

$10,000 to $15,000 to Be Raised by 100 Theaters This Monday

Saenger theater will observe "Tornado Relief Day" at 2:30 p. m. Monday, all proceeds to go for relief of Mississippi tornado victims.

Co-operating in the movement are: D. B. Thompson, Red Cross chairman of Hempstead county; pastors of Hope churches who will make special announcement of the benefit performance during church services Sunday; and The Star, which is donating advertising for the show.

Manager Arthur Swanke of the Saenger has booked James Cagney in the "Frisco Kid," for matinee showing only. All costs to produce the show will be donated. Proceeds will be turned over to the Memphis office of the Red Cross.

Saenger theater is one of approximately 100 theaters in Arkansas, Tennessee and Mississippi which will hold "mercy" performances.

It has been estimated that from $10,000 to $15,000 will be raised by theaters in the three states.

Admission will be 10 and 15 cents. There will be no tax.

Motive Given for Fight for Child

Reveal Mrs. Muench's Plot to Collect $250,000 in Blackmail

KAHOKA, Mo.—(AP)—A wealthy and socially well known St. Louis physician, asserting she "threw herself into my arms," testified Friday that Mrs. Nellie Tipton Muench attempted to dupe him into believing he was the father of her "gift from God" baby.

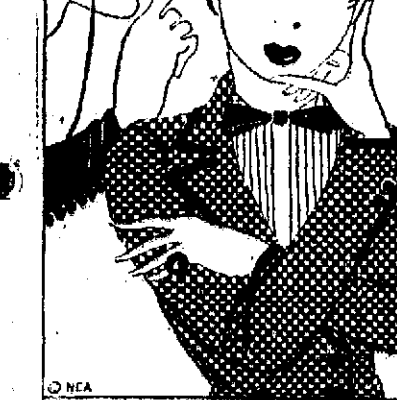

Dr. Marsh Pittman, saying "this is the first time I am announcing it officially," told of illicit relations extending over several years with the comely wife of Dr. Ludwig O. Muench, with whom he had once shared a suite of offices.

Mrs. Grace Caroline Thomasson, who had said she was a party to the conspiracy, had testified it was Mrs. Muench's intention, with the knowledge of her husband, to obtain $250,000 from Dr. Pittman through the baby.

The bachelor physician who said he practiced his profession "only mildly," made no mention of such sum, although he said he gave Mrs. Muench $4,000 before he "lost faith" in her assertion that he was the father of the child.

The child, a St. Louis court held last December, was not Mrs. Muench's but was obtained by her through agents from Anna Ware, unwed servant girl, who filed a habeas corpus suit and recovered the baby.

Stephens Upheld; He Will Conduct Dry Contest Case

Circuit Judge Bush Overrules Effort to Disqualify Him

HEARING APRIL 20

Criminal Docket Scheduled to Begin in Circuit Court Monday

Circuit Judge Dexter Bush Friday overruled a petition for a writ of prohibition brought by attorneys seeking to disqualify County Judge H. M. Stephens from hearing the Hempstead county liquor election contest suit.

Attorneys Luke Monroe and Steve Carrigan presented the petition which alleged that the county court had no jurisdiction to try the case under Act 108 of the Thorn liquor law.

A second provision of the petition alleged that County Judge Stephens was not qualified to judge the contest proceedings because of bias and partisanship to the prohibition side.

Attorneys for the contestants prepared Saturday to present further motions before the court on Monday, April 20.

SIoux FALLS, S. D.—(AP)—At least three persons, including a woman, were injured and one strike leader was arrested Saturday as trouble flared anew at the John Morrell & Co. packing plant where some union butchers have been on strike for more than a year. Police, firing several tear gas shells, dispersed an estimated 300 strikers and their sympathizers who besieged the plant and attempted to halt employees.

ANKARA, Turkey.—(AP)—Turkey formally sought permission Saturday to rearm the Dardanelles Strait between the Aegean and Marmora seas, despite the post-war treaty of Lausanne which maintains demilitarized zones on either side. In its long-anticipated move, the Turkish government asked the other signatories to the treaty to amend its clauses so as to permit rearmament.

New Air Tragedy Spurs U. S. Drive on Safety Devices

TWA Crash at Uniontown Follows American's Disaster at Goodwin

BUT SAFETY GAINS

Average Man Due to Fly 1,000 Miles a Day for 60 Years, Safely

By WILLIS THORNTON
NEA Service Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON—With 11 new names written in blood at the top of the growing list of airplane accident victims, efforts at making air travel safer are being redoubled here.

Increasing success of that effort during the last five years is obscured in times of mourning for recent deaths—in this case those of the TWA "Sun Racer" at Uniontown, Pa.

Yet the success is real, considered over a period of years rather than of weeks.

Six Times Safer

For instance, five years ago the accident rate on commercial air lines justified this expectation: That a man could get aboard an airliner every morning of the year, fly 1000 miles a day, for 10 years, before he would be "due" for a fatal accident.

Today, he should be able to keep up that 1000-mile-a-day flying for 60 years without his fatal accident "coming due."

In other words, commercial air travel in five years has become six times safer. That is based on the number of miles flown in proportion to the number of passengers killed, as correlated by Eugene L. Vidal, director of air commerce of the Department of Commerce.

But gradually-growing safety is not enough. The spectacular horror of airplane accidents is such that each one speeds up greatly the flight to make flying safe.

More Money Asked
Already Vidal is asking for an extra $4,500,000 for Commerce Department for additional airway safety devices for the coming year—more radio beacons, light beacons, experts to run them, and research men to seek out new safety devices.

Inspectors for the Department of Commerce are already on the ground at Uniontown, to wring from the wreckage such useful knowledge as may help prevent future accidents from the same cause. One of the 13 bad crashes of the last two years has remained mysterious after the federal inspectors were through.

This was the strange crash near Goodwin, Ark., which killed 17 people last January, the cause of which has not been determined. It was this crash, however, that led to new regulations by the department requiring pilots' compartments to remain locked while the ship is in flight, and that both pilot and co-pilot shall remain in their seats throughout the flight except in cases of necessity or emergency.

So each accident, ghastly though it may be, is made to contribute something to making the air safer in future.

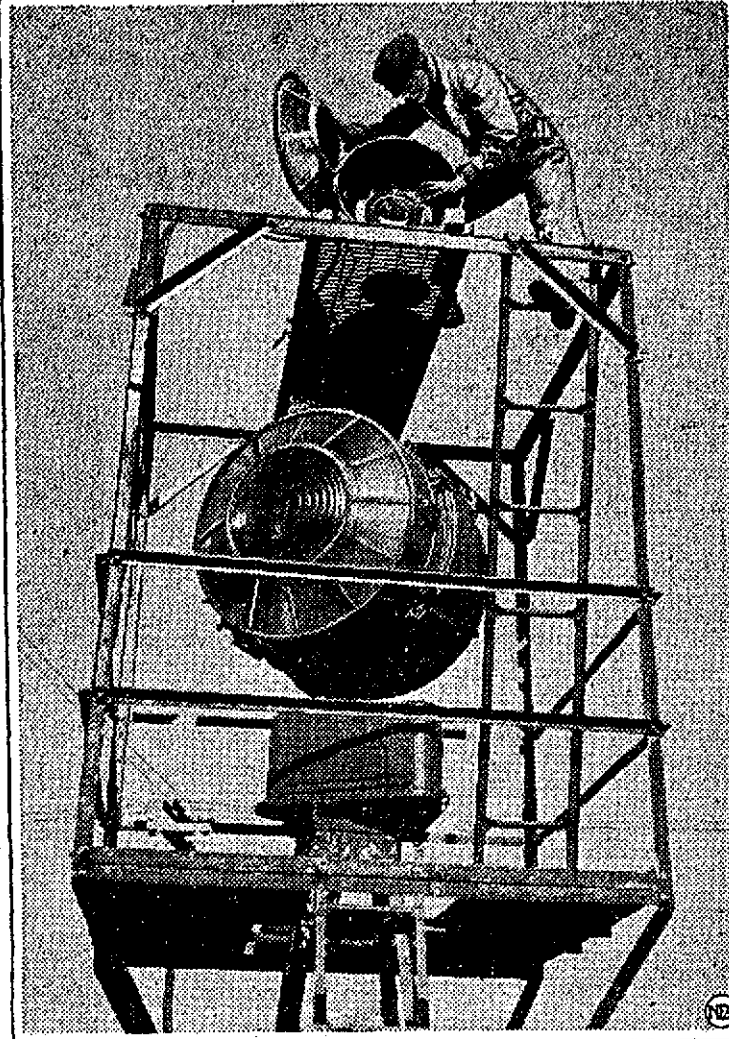

Senate Probes Safety
Active at the scene of the latest air tragedy are also the expert investigators of the Senate Commerce committee, which is midway in an investigation of air safety. This investigation was inspired largely by the death of Senator Bronson Cutting in the crash of a TWA liner near Atlanta, Mo., almost exactly a year ago.

The sub-committee, headed by Senator Royal S. Copeland of New York, is ordered to find out whether government authorities charged with air safety are effectively doing their job and whether inspectors, licensing requirements and the like are adequate.

The Copeland sub-committee has already held several acrimonious public hearings in which airline operators accused government agencies and inspectors of being lax in regulation, and Senator Copeland himself accused the airlines of not co-operating with the investigation.

The open hearings are now recessed, but it is expected that they will be resumed as soon as its inspectors have finished at the Uniontown wreck scene.

Flying Beacons Are Important

A new flying beacon being installed near the airport at Pittsfield, Mass., one of the safeguards the government tries to throw about flying. Criticism has been made that, for economy's sake, the government cut the power of some beacons from 1000 to 500 watts. But more and better beacons is the demand today.

Rural Supervisors of 9 Counties Here

Southwest Arkansas Women Meet at Resettlement Office

Sunday mail services from Prescott to Rosston and Waterloo will be inaugurated this Sunday, April 12. The carrier will leave Prescott at 7 a. m. and will arrive at Waterloo at 8:15, returning to Prescott immediately afterward.

This service will enable the patrons of these offices to receive their daily papers and other mail at an early hour Sunday morning.

The outgoing mail from these points will be 24 hours earlier than under the old schedule.

Negro to Die for Attack on Child

Willie Dickerson Convicted at Linden, Texas, of Assault

LINDEN, Texas.—(AP)—Willie Dickerson, 22, negro, was sentenced to death Friday on a charge of criminally assaulting a 4-year-old white girl near Atlanta, Texas, last December 19.

The negro, who slept until the verdict was returned, laughed when a jury fixed his penalty at death in the electric chair after deliberating 27 minutes.

S. I. Cornett, appointed to defend the negro, said he would not appeal. Dickerson will be taken to Huntsville state prison immediately.

Harold King Home, Wirephoto Aide

Is in Charge of A.P. Transmission at Dallas Office

Harold King, formerly with the sales department of the Ivory Handle company but now in charge of wirephoto transmission for the Associated Press at Dallas, Texas, is visiting friends and relatives in Hope on vacation this week, planning to return to Dallas Monday.

Mr. King, who had made a hobby out of the technical study of radio, was also to turn his knowledge to practical account when the Associated Press launched its great wirephoto system in 1934. The Hope man taking charge of one "trick" at the office is the News-Journal building in Dallas at the Dallas office from 2 p. m. to midnight daily. He is in the traffic department of the Associated Press the A.P. service being divided into news and traffic (or transmission) departments.

New York Woman Slain in Bathtub

Wife of Radio Executive Believed Assaulted and Strangled

NEW YORK.—(AP)—Evidence that Mrs. Nancy Evans Titterton was criminally assaulted before she was strangled in her Beekman Place apartment was shown by an autopsy Saturday. Assistant Chief Inspector John A. Lyons announced.

Dr. Thomas C. Gorman, who conducted the autopsy, declined to discuss the results further.

Found in Bathtub

NEW YORK.—(AP)—A sash around her neck, the nude body of Mrs. Nancy Titterton, 34, attractive young wife of a radio executive, was found in her bathtub Friday and Sgt. Thomas Martin said she had been murdered by strangulation.

Her wrists apparently had been tied. Martin said, and an acting medical examiner said there was evidence of an attempted assault.

The bedroom showed evidence of struggle. Underclothing of the red-haired matron, an authoress known to several magazines, was scattered all over it.

Mrs. Titterton was Nancy Evans until her marriage six years ago. She wrote under that name since coming to New York from Dayton, O., and her articles had appeared in the Bookman, Story and other magazines.

Two porters delivering a sofa to the residential apartment building in the East "Fifties" discovered the tragedy. John Florenza and Theodore Kruger found the door to the fourth-floor apartment ajar. Without entering they called two building superintendents.

The Truth About Diet

By DR. MORRIS FISHER
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

Many questions have been asked about the artificial ripening of fruits, about the dangers of various substances used in protecting the fruit against infection by worms and parasites. To get the fruit to market in the best possible condition, methods have been developed for picking fruit in a green stage and then ripening it artificially on the way to market.

In 1923 it was discovered that the fumes of ethylene gas would stimulate the ripening. This process now is used with oranges, tomatoes, lemons, dates, and persimmons.

Scientific studies do not indicate any essential differences between fruits allowed to ripen naturally and those in which ripening has been hastened with ethylene.

Over-ripened tomatoes, however, have been found to have a higher content of vitamin C than tomatoes picked green and then ripened.

A question also has been raised about the danger of eating apples or other fruits which have been sprayed with a combination of lead and arsenic, to prevent their destruction by various parasites.

It should be realized that only these modern methods of handling make possible the use of fruits in large quantities by most people, since these methods aid production and thereby tend to lower prices.

Under the laws of various states, fruit growers are supposed to wash the fruit, to remove any dangerous quantities of poisonous substances before shipment. The records of medicine do not show any significant cases of human beings being poisoned in any way by the lead and arsenic content of fruits.

Actually, people who want to be reasonably hygienic should wash not only themselves, but all fruit, before it is served on the table.

In the case of the apple, particularly, it is possible for the chemical to remain in detectable amounts in the depression where the stem is fastened to the fruit. One therefore, should be especially careful to make certain that this portion of the apple is thoroughly eaten or removed before the fruit is eaten.

A Book a Day
By Bruce Catton

Peter Freuchen is an Arctic explorer who makes the highly publicized darlings of the book publishers look like Boy Scouts. Without benefit of press agency he has spent a quarter century in the far north, doing as part of the day's work things that would have made him a sensation if he only had bothered to get a radio contract first.

He tells about his career in "Arctic Adventure" (Farrar and Rinehart, $3.50), and the result is a book which leaves most other books in its class looking pale and unsatisfactory.

A Dane by birth, Mr. Freuchen went to northern Greenland shortly before Peary and Cook came back from their polar quests. His work in that one expedition would be enough to rank him with the great explorers; but it was only a starter.

After it was over, he established a trading post, in partnership with the great Knud Rasmussen, far up toward the upper tip of Greenland, and he has lived there—except for two or three brief visits home—for some 20 consecutive years.

He has made long, dizzying dangerous trips over the desolate ice cap; he has traveled scores of miles over the sea ice in the black night of Arctic winter; he has faced starvation and cold so many times they are beyond counting; and all these things he has done simply as part of the job, not for headlines and fame.

Living in Greenland seems to demand, among other things, a cast-iron stomach; the morris Mr. Freuchen describes are frequently pretty horrifying. But life up there also seems to offer great rewards, and in this book Mr. Freuchen is able to make you see just what those rewards are, and why he has found them satisfying.

Your Children
By Olive Roberts Barton

Johnnie was nearly through with his story. In just a minute, now, the pirate gold would be discovered, the rollicking crew would carry the iron box to the black ship, and sail away to spend the coins.

In just one—more—minute. . . . "Johnnie!"

He didn't answer because he was so far away, on a desert island, that he did not hear.

"Johnnie, oh, Johnnie!"

"Yes, mother!"

"Put that book down this minute and go to the store."

"Oh, see, mother, just a half second. Golly, I'm almost through."

"You can finish when you come back. And don't say golly. I want a loaf of bread, two pounds of sugar, a box of matches, and some lettuce. And hurry! Haven't I told you to drop everything when I speak and come instantly?"

Attention Remains at Home
So Johnnie put aside his book, with one paragraph yet to be read, and walked down a forest path, in a strange, exciting world in search of a pirate gold, although his real destination was the corner grocery store and he only passed the neighbors' houses. It was small wonder that he came home with some celery instead of lettuce; two loaves of bread, and one pound of sugar!

Had Johnnie's mother said: Johnnie, I have an errand for you to do at the store. When you come to a place in your story where you can stop, will you go, please? Johnnie would have cheerfully accepted the task. A minute or two wouldn't have made any difference in the purchases.

No one, adult or child, likes to be interrupted constantly at the things he is doing. A feeling of resentment always follows. Quite likely Johnnie will carry his book out of ear-shot the next time he finds a Robert Louis Stevenson or Edgar Allan Poe treasure.

Had the mother evinced a little interest in the story, asked an intelligent question or two, waited with patience, her errand would have been taken care of, and Johnnie, in the happiness of finding an audience, might have helped her arrange the table for dinner.

Every human being, seven or seventy, has a right to certain emotional privacy. Nothing shatters it so swiftly as the quick commandment: "When I call you, I want you to come!"

The gossip columnist seemed less important after that, and Toby decided to forget his barbs. When anyone said anything about the reported romance, she laughed and was surprised to find that this attitude seemed to discourage questioners.

She had more time with Harriet these days. Clyde Sablin was away on another trip.

"Maybe," Harriet said, "the next time he goes, I'll go with him." She was buying her trousseau and insisted that Toby must accompany her on many of the shopping trips. Harriet was a shrewd shopper, but now she wanted advice. Towns were selected and sent home only to be returned. She couldn't decide between the blue negligee and the yellow one. And what about shoes? Did the ones with the buckles or the straps look best?

Toby heard these questions and others again and again. She answered as well as she could and she tried to be enthusiastic when Harriet talked of Clyde and their plans.

That was the hardest. Toby still distrusted Clyde Sablin. She hated to think Harriet was going to marry him, and there wasn't a thing in the world that she could do about it. She couldn't say, "Harriet, I don't think you should marry Clyde because he tried to make a date with me."

No, she couldn't do that. She couldn't do anything at all except help choose the dresses and hats and shoes Harriet was to wear on her honeymoon and hope that her fears might prove unfounded.

Toby was going to keep the apartment. She was earning enough now so that she could afford it. The furniture was Harriet's, but she wanted Toby to keep that, too. "We'll be living in a hotel," Harriet said, "at least for a while. I'd rather go with Clyde when he's away on trips than stay here alone, so an apartment would be a nuisance. After while we'll have a place of our own, but, in the meantime, I'd like to have you keep my things."

Toby agreed. It would be lonely without Harriet and she was glad she could stay in the same cheerful surroundings.

She had promised to go with Harriet to look at some hats one afternoon, but first she had an appointment at the beauty shop.

"I'll meet you at a quarter of four," Toby said. "At the street entrance of the store."

"All right. I'll be there."

Toby hurried away. She finished at the beauty shop and went on to the store. Harriet was not in sight when she arrived there.

"She'll probably come in a few minutes," Toby told herself, and strolled on to look at a shop window.

The window proved uninteresting. Toby turned away a moment later and noticed a man coming toward her. He was of medium height and he wore a rather shabby suit and a dark hat. Toby had seen him somewhere. She tried to think where, but couldn't remember. The next instant he was beside her.

The man stopped. "So I've found you again!" he said. "This time, you're coming with me!"

THE vogue for blouses makes this pattern a boon to women, for it offers two designs for the price of one. Design A, with its frilly, trimming on collar and closing and the pleated sleeves, is more feminine in appeal than the smartly tailored polo type shirtwaist with mannish collar, fine for sportswear and office. Patterns are sized 14 to 20 and 32 to 42. Size 16 requires 2 yards of 35-inch fabric for blouse A, with 1 1/2 yards of machine pleating; and 1 7/8 yards for blouse B.

"She'll probably come in a few minutes," Toby told herself, and strolled on to look at a shop window.

The window proved uninteresting. Toby turned away a moment later and noticed a man coming toward her. He was of medium height and he wore a rather shabby suit and a dark hat. Toby had seen him somewhere. She tried to think where, but couldn't remember. The next instant he was beside her.

The man stopped. "So I've found you again!" he said. "This time, you're coming with me!"

THE vogue for blouses makes this pattern a boon to women, for it offers two designs for the price of one. Design A, with its frilly, trimming on collar and closing and the pleated sleeves, is more feminine in appeal than the smartly tailored polo type shirtwaist with mannish collar, fine for sportswear and office. Patterns are sized 14 to 20 and 32 to 42. Size 16 requires 2 yards of 35-inch fabric for blouse A, with 1 1/2 yards of machine pleating; and 1 7/8 yards for blouse B.

New Dietrich Film
She Replaces Merle Oberon—Other Notes From Hollywood

By ROBBIN COONS
Associated Press Correspondent
HOLLYWOOD—Unrelaxing parade: Marlene Dietrich quit Paramount and will replace Merle Oberon in "The Garden of Allah" for Selznick, but she still takes her beauty treatments from Dot Pondell of her old lot. . . . They are close personal friends.

Horsemen in the McCrea family start training early. Frances Dee reports that Joel Dec, aged 18 months, already sits on a horse like a veteran, clinging to Daddy Joel's waist. The other youngsters, David Thomas, will be put in the saddle as soon as possible. . . . He doesn't sit up yet.

Add to the saga of writers in Hollywood: A new scribe, fresh in the studio, arose at story conference and meekly requested the floor while he asked a question. The others felt that inspiration was in their midst. It wasn't.

"I wonder," he asked, "if it couldn't be arranged for me to have a room with a desk and a chair in it?"

He was given, of course, a fancy study, complete with decorations, dictaphone and secretary. . . . He couldn't stand it, so much grandeur. He fled to work in a shack in the hills.

Hollywood has become "round-show-minded" again. "The Great Ziegfeld" will be opened locally with a big old-time "gala premiere" at one of the former show theaters of the colony. This house, long dark except for intermittent benefits, stage productions and the like, has been in waiting for a revival of fame. Studios recently have leased it for special previews, to which stars turn out in glittering numbers. Frank Capra's latest, "Mr. Deeds Goes to Town," was shown there. The consensus was that Capra, plus Gary Cooper, had "gone to town" again.

Farnum A King Again
Statistical: William Farnum is playing his 17th kingly role in "The Undersea Kingdom," a serial thriller. . . . And Smiley Burnette, cowboy singer, plays 26 different musical instruments.

Beverly Hills, Calif. And Mary Boland has a new studio dressing room: the one May West vacated.

"I married a Doctor" reunites Pat O'Brien and Josephine Hutchinson effectively in Sinclair Lewis's old best-seller, "Main Street." Small towns may not be so small as Lewis once said they were, but gossip never grows "dated," and on this premise the scenarists have made the tale as any. Lewis's Gopher Prairie here is Williamsburg, but Main Street is still Main street.

The picture was made for those who liked the stars together in "Oil for the Lamps of China."

A free aviation ground school course is being conducted by the WPA at Lansing, Mich.

Doctors in the wilderness of central Alaska often are called out on 10-day trips by dogsled.

"Bad weather" had already been conquered by the plane lines to the point where that does not mean the same thing as on the ground. Dark clouds and rain are nothing to the commercial flyer. "Bad weather" in the air is the kind that shrouds the wings, propellers and carburetors with ice, or which hides the landing port beneath fog. Those are the enemy in the war on plane accidents.

The Commerce Department has co-operated in bringing out devices to shake new-formed ice from wings, and keep it from forming on propeller and carburetor. Soon this peril may be of the past.

Will Rogers?

Guess Again!

Yes, your eyes are deceiving you, but don't blame them! Even Will Rogers once said to A. A. Trimble, above, Cleveland, O., map salesman, "Don't say if you don't remind me of myself!" Because of his remarkable resemblance to the famed cowboy humorist, Trimble was cast to play the role of Rogers in a new motion picture.

Government inspection, navigation and weather services were freely criticized as below par in efficiency, due to inexperienced help, politics and poor equipment.

For planes have just been designed by the U. S. Bureau of Standards. Every plane lint maintains its own experimental department to make flying safer, for accidents are costly.

Such associations as the Institute of the Aeronautical Sciences, and all flying associations like the Air Transport Association and the National Aeronautical Association, are constantly at work on means of making the mechanical side of flying as near perfect as possible and reducing to absolute minimum the "human element." But this can never be entirely eliminated as long as planes are flown by men.

An Easter Prayer.

God, always let my heart respond to beauty.
God, never let me grow too old to see.
The waking loveliness of early April.
The voices of a newly budded tree.
God, never let my senses dull to color.
Or to the majesty of bells that chime.
Or to the glowing purity of lilies.
That come to bless the world at Easter time.
God, let me see the blessed resurrection.
That lives in every singing blade of grass.
And let me hear the whispered note of gladness.
That is the soul of gentle winds that pass.
God, let me know the vivid thrill of being.
That came, one spring, to fling a tomb's door wide—
God, let me know anew, your boundless mercy.
That is the symbol of the Easter tide.
—Selected.

When life is slowly bursting forth anew in springtime, in woods, in parks in gardens—when as George MacDonald says, in his songs of the Spring-days.

The holy spirit of the Spring is working silently.
Then comes the holy festival called Easter, observed in many branches of the Christian church, to commemorate the resurrection of Christ. Many customs, beautiful and quaint, have been

Dietrich, Cooper at Saenger Sunday

"Desire," Their Newest Film, at Saenger Sunday and Monday

"Desire," the romantic comedy which brings together Marlene Dietrich and

Gary Cooper for the first time since "Morocco," comes Sunday and Monday to the Saenger.

These stars complement one another perfectly. To see them is to approve Director Frank Borzage's choice in placing them first in his list of famous screen lovers of all time.

Romance, comedy, adventure—these elements are expertly joined in "Desire," which is highly recommended.

The mood of this exciting picture changes constantly. One moment, Marlene Dietrich is sunnily consuming the theft, through a rose, of a costly string of pearls from a leading Parisian jeweler. The next, she is in danger at a border town in Europe, when the customs officials are unexpectedly thorough in their search.

The encounter with the American vacationist, played by Cooper, begins with comedy and turns to ardent romance.

The action, the dialogue, and the situations combine to make "Desire" one of the most enjoyable screen pictures of the year. Do not miss it!

North China Has to Buy Its 'Loyalty'

"Christian General" Kept Out of Japanese Hands by Money

NANKING.—(AP)—It is costing the Chinese government Mex. $2,000 (U. S. $600 monthly, in addition to up-keep of bodyguards and motorcars, to keep the erstwhile "Christian general," Feng Yu-Shiang, reasonably loyal.

But officials believe they are getting full value received. General Feng, it is conceded, could be a source of embarrassment to the regime should he oppose Nanking. The son of a coolie, he wields far-reaching influence.

The "Christian general" recently came to Nanking from Tai-Shan, the holy mountain of Shantung province where he had lived in retirement for several years. He has accepted a post as vice-chairman of the military affairs commission, under Premier Chiang Kai-Shek, once his bitter enemy.

Overlords Flirt With Japan
The government also has to pay heavily to hold the allegiance of Marshal Yen Hui-Shan, veteran overlord of Shansi and Suiyuan provinces, and General Han Fu-Chi, chairman of Shantung province. Both have come within the orbit of Japanese influence in North China and for months have been toying with the idea of joining an autonomous federation of north China provinces.

Grant of a $500,000 loan by three government banks to the Yellow River conservation commission for repairing dikes in Shantung is interpreted in semi-official quarters as an effort on the part of Nanking to "do something" for Han.

"Last Ditch" in Japan's Path
Breaks in the Shantung dikes led to disastrous floods last autumn, but Han persistently maintained he had no funds for the urgently necessary engineering work.

Government officials frequently refer to the Yellow River as the "last ditch," beyond which the Japanese will not be allowed to pass unopposed. Nanking, it is claimed, would back Han in opposing the Japanese should they attempt to extend their authority south of the Hopei border.

Han, meanwhile, is straddling his political fences with difficulty. From the point of view of receiving economic and financial assistance and promises of more when needed. At the same time, he is showing polite hospitality to Japanese emissaries, but promising nothing.

An "airscape" is a coined word used to describe a picture taken from an airplane. It word may displace the old term, "bird's-eye view."

ing at 6 o'clock when a sunrise service will be presented in dramatic form. The subject of this message is "Bread of Tears" with the characters, Mary and Martha, played by Miss Phila Tharp and Miss Mina Mae Millburn. A very vital Easter message is conveyed in this story.

The church school will convene at 9:45 a. m.
At the morning congregational worship, the pastor will use as his Easter subject, "If a Man Die—What?" A class of babies will be baptized after the first hymn in the morning service.

As already announced the choir under the direction of Mrs. Ralph Rounton will present the cantata, "Bright Easter Morn," at the night service at 7:30 o'clock.

After the flu epidemic, let Sunday be a new beginning in attendance up, on the services of the church to last throughout the year.

Variety of Dodge Trucks

With the Dodge truck plant output reaching high levels this month, the above picture gives evidence of the wide variety of types and sizes of trucks and commercial cars that are coming off the assembly lines every day.

Practically all lines of industry and business in which trucks and commercial cars are used have been represented during the month of March in the wide variety of units manufactured and shipped by the Detroit Dodge truck plant. This was announced here today through the E. R. Hamlin Motor Company, Dodge dealer, with showrooms at corner of Walnut and Third streets.

During the last several weeks an unusually wide variety of special and standard types of commercial cars and trucks have been produced and have ranged in load capacity from the half-ton commercial express car to the heavy duty three-ton trucks.

Analysis of the figures supplied by the special equipment department of the Dodge truck plant reveals that recently there has been an increasing demand for unusual types of truck bodies.

Already this month the special equipment department of the Dodge truck plant reveals that recently there has been an increasing demand for unusual types of truck bodies.

And well loudly enough the crocodiles will stay away. The fact that natives frequently are attacked indicates the crocodiles have not been educated to this theory.

This fare is supplemented by gazelles, wild pigs, and other game the soldiers kill on march.

On rare occasions the army comes to a river where the troops, who often fight on less than a quart of drinking water a day, revel in an orgy of shower baths. Swimming is prohibited as crocodiles are in almost every stream.

It is impossible, however, to keep the native soldiers from swimming. The natives believe that if they splash

Hollywood

By Paul Harrison

HOLLYWOOD.—You shouldn't say that Tuffy is a mutt, just because he doesn't happen to have a pedigree. Tuffy probably has some very distinguished lineage. In fact, several kinds of it—mostly collie and shepherd.

Besides, Hollywood is a face-value town in which only performance counts very much. A person doesn't need a social pedigree to be a star. Tuffy doesn't either. But he is an individual of such distinction that

FRECKLES AND HIS FRIENDS

IT'S QUITE EVIDENT THAT NUTTY IS GONE, ALL RIGHT!
HE MUSTA LEFT THRU THE WINDOW! GEE, I DIDN'T THINK NUTTY'D DO A THING LIKE THAT!
I WONDER WHEN HE LEFT?
HE WAS HERE WHILE THOSE PEOPLE WERE PHONING YOU! THEN HE DISAPPEARED!
THAT'S RIGHT! I DIDN'T KNOW I'D STIR UP SUCH PROTESTS, SIMPLY BECAUSE I HAD NUTTY ENTRUSTED TO MY CARE!
I BET NUTTY LEFT BECAUSE HE DIDN'T WANT YOU ON THE SPOT!
HMM! I SHOULDN'T BE A BIT SURPRISED! HE PROBABLY LEFT SO THAT I WOULDN'T BE CRITICIZED FOR KEEPING HIM HERE!
BUT THAT WON'T HELP ME ANY! I'M RESPONSIBLE FOR HIM! A LOT OF PEOPLE THOUGHT NUTTY WAS BAD... THIS WILL CONVINCE THEM! THAT WAS THE WRONG MOVE HE MADE, I'M AFRAID!
